

As the water flows

As the water flows from the river to the sea
I take my refuge in the heart and mind and as the sun is setting on my weary skin and bones I feel the soothing and I shine a light, shine a light let me in

As the moon is turning the tides away again and leave the stranded fish alone in pain and as the dark knight lets his sword out gleaming in the light I feel no comfort, but I know the rush, let it the flush let it be

tema, solo, tema

As the water flows from the river to the sea
and thus with might and grace in serenity I watch the earthen turmoil, but I never touch, never touch I let it flow, let it grow
I shine a light, shine a light let me be
