

I never could reach you

Watching your reflection in the window of the train, as it rushes by,
station after station mile after mile on through the night it's a merciless fight

Listen to the silence of the void as it suffocate our breaths rushing through the brain will I ever dare look straight in your eyes knowing full well that you're going through hell

I never could reach you
I didn't dare to try
I never could reach you
and ask you the reason why I knew if I shouted out the truth right in your face you never would understand and you'd put up your defences

Happy days are long gone now well they could not linger on no one really knew they just were a break from wounds so ever fresh still you had that drive to pretend and survive

Drink up dreamers your cup of joy and the noise will fade away like a train in the night now that you're gone life carries on it now seems so far just memories and scars

I never could reach you
I didn't dare to try

I never could reach you
